

Press Release

September 18, 2017

International Protective Security Board Announces Sponsorship Details for the 2017 Close Protection Conference

The International Protective Security Board (IPSB), which will host its annual Close Protection Conference in Las Vegas from November 30th - December 2 at the Westgate Hotel, has announced details regarding their available sponsorship packages.

Prospective sponsors looking to collaborate with the premiere training and knowledge symposium for the Protective Security community will have five options to choose from. The packages range in price from $1,500 - $10,000 USD.

Benefits of sponsorship vary by package. Sponsors at the Diamond level can expect to receive ten (10) complimentary passes to the conference, the ability to have promotional material included in the attendee packet, signage throughout the conference and one (1) year of promotion on the IPSB's website and monthly newsletters amongst other benefits.

A separate set of vendor packages are also available for companies looking to be involved with the event. Three new categories of vendor packages have been created for this year's conference. The first of the three levels can be purchased for $250 while the top package may be purchased for $1,000. Vendor packages allow for companies to highlight and showcase their products to hundreds of members of the Close Protection industry. Benefits include having access to sales tables within the conference site and receiving mailing and contact lists of attendees.

For more information regarding the specifics of the various sponsor and vendor packages, consult the official IPSB website at <http://ips-board.org/contact/sponsors/>.

The International Protective Security Board is an independent, volunteer organization devoted to promoting the protection industry's interests and professionalization. It is the Board's mission to advance the interests and best practices of close protection professionals as well as training and educational vendors. The IPSB works with a wide array of public and private sector industries in the field of protective security including high net-worth individuals, governmental organizations and multinational corporations.

For further information, please contact:

Kristin Lenardson
IPSB@outlook.com